One of the greatest joys for many of us is being an aunt! Aunt Becki had a couch full of kids which called for a super fun pajamas and Christmas movies party. We love how she captured all the giddy happiness in this adorable photo. But let's check out this design... a patterned paper border and coordinating patterned paper strips to anchor the photo—and don't miss the clever rolls at the bottom of each strip!

A regal partridge commands this beautiful holiday design that Laura sent into our call for submissions. Notice all the wonderful details she added: woodgrain textured cardstock, stitching, vellum leaves, plaid, glittery enamel dots, and dimensional glaze on the berries.

This adorable submission from Marsha Farris is from her 2020 December Memories Album using traveller's notebook-sized pages. In her journaling, she tells how her parents restored her doll cradle for a Christmas gift for her daughter. Over 30 years ago, Marsha's father had handcrafted the cradle for her, and now it's being passed on to her daughter. These are the precious moments that make memory keeping so important!

Oh, how we love Mendi Yoshikawa's gorgeous card designs! This classically beautiful Christmas card not only is magnificently coloured with Copic markers, but the well-executed placement of her stamped images is just lovely! Her white background with dry embossing and die-stitched details add so much to the overall design.

Whether you love winter or not, wintry layouts are so lovely!

Aimee's beautiful photo with her honey shows that snuggling up in a winter wonderland is delightful. What's even MORE delightful is her layout that features a super pretty snowflake wreath with touches of soft blue and green. And the snowy sequins add a gorgeous sparkle!

Nicole's cheerful winter layout captures the joy of a child playing in the snow.

The tearing beneath her handwritten journaling and the jaunty angles of the elements mimic the raucous fun that a snowy day can bring. And since orange is the complement of blue, the orange elements add pops of perfection!

Jennifer's lovely layout is sure to bring back beautiful memories of Christmases past.

Her vintage photo is clearly a special keepsake, and the music paper and lush Christmas florals and old-timey Santa and reindeer lend a timeless feel to the overall design. And what's even more unique is that she was able to incorporate a beautiful bow made with some of her grandmother's vintage ribbon.

The cute pups with rosy cheeks all dressed in scarves and sweaters on this slimline design from Noga Shefer are sure to make you smile! The pretty snowy sky and landscape create a darling backdrop, and the cute, scalloped frame and bit of twine add fun to the card design. And the little white heart at the end of the sentiment is a wonderful finishing touch.

Italian paper crafter Giorgia Rossini fashioned
this magical home décor for the holidays. Her sweet and festive wreath is comprised of two layers of folded patterned papers in beautiful soft colours, and the scene in the middle of the wreath captures the bustling sidewalks and streets of an imaginary Christmas town. The lights she added make the design sparkle even more!

This cute pocket page layout is made even cuter by Kira's storytelling.

After a trip to Target where she and her son encountered some really fun cupcakes, he insisted they go home and make cupcakes RIGHT AWAY. Well, Mama made him wait a bit, and once they got started, he just wanted to fill his belly with batter. What a fun memory! Not only is her story precious, the beautiful set up of the two pages is absolutely enchanting.

Winter fun can wear you out, and we are simply captivated by this beautiful photo of two tuckered out kids on Aurélie's layout. What caught our eye in this design is the use of brown, the angle of the patterned papers, the three metal clips with bitty stitches, and the "free-handed" wooden circle bringing attention to the photo. So well done!

High fives for Andrew!

He chose a lovely, wintry outdoor scene to pop the question to Bailey, and the resulting photo is simply captivating. Marcia's layout pays homage to this special moment with a big and beautiful vellum heart and hints of gold and romance. Congratulations to the happy couple!

The Ruiz family was making cookies for Santa, and Rebeca wanted to photograph her daughters. She quips: "My toddler is a very active and spontaneous girl making it hard for me to take photos, but my big one is always posing and ready. After taking many photos and having only one with both looking at the camera smiling, I decided to use some of the funny photos for this layout. They are not 'perfect shots' but surely, they show their personalities. Looking at these photos will always bring back those funny memories." And isn't that what it's all about?

Betsy's layout is so fun, and we are wagering a guess that a whole slew of you will scraplift her idea! This cute photo of her granddaughters in fancy dresses gets extra special treatment with a grand "tree" created with all kinds of bits and baubles. Consider this: any simple shape—like a circle, star, or heart—could get the same treatment. AWESOME idea!

If you've got a lovable little bug in your life, take a photo of the two of you together to commemorate your bond! Jenny's pretty layout is filled with sweet sentiments, pretty flowers, and lots of hearts. The lined paper background made it simple to adhere her letter stickers in a straight line! We adore all the lovely layers in her embellishment clusters!

Natalie had so much fun juxtaposing a beach-themed cut file with Christmas-themed papers to reflect her family's experience spending Christmas on the beach! Sunglasses, bathing suits, flip flops, and other beachy items get the holiday treatment with festive patterned papers, and to give it more of a Christmas feel, she added poinsettia stickers to the wreath! She counts this layout one of her favourites, and we totally understand why!
