

Jen Shults is a middle school art teacher who has had a passion for all things artistic from a very young age. She was introduced to the world of paper crafts in 2006 when a friend gave her a gorgeous first-year baby album at a shower. Over the next few years her interest grew and by 2009, cardmaking was a daily fixture in her life. Her husband and two children are very supportive of the hobby and frequently join in to create things of their own.

Jen is currently the Creative Team Coordinator for Taylored Expressions and occasionally teaches local cardmaking classes in Kansas City. When she's not papercrafting she spends time working on traditional pencil portraits, reading, cooking and playing video games with her husband and son. Her family; husband of 17 years, Chris, her 12 year-old daughter Evey, and 10 year-old son Ben, are Kansas City natives and currently live a bit south of the city in Lee's Summit, Missouri.
