font finds

San serif fonts. They're clean. They're minimal. They're classic. And some of them come in all-caps only styles. While all caps can be a little harder to read in big chunks, they can be really great in small doses. Here are some fun—and free!—all-cap sans serifs to try on your next page or project.

SPRING

BEBAS NEUE, fontfabric.com

This all-caps typeface is considered the Helvetica of free fonts. It's tall and well designed. Great for page titles and subtitles.

SPRING

ARCHIVE, fontfabric.com

This all-caps font has a very modern feel and would work well for titles. It's also easy enough to read that it would be ideal for accenting key words in your journaling.

SPRING

MYRA, fontfabric.com

This all-caps contemporary font features an art deco flair as some letters contain a decorative curl. Great for short titles and monogrammed page elements. This would work well for girl-themed projects.

SPRING

BARON, fontfabric.com

Here's one more all caps modern font featuring a handful of letters with a creative structure. Another fun title font for adolescent or teen boy pages.

App: Project Life

Scrapbooking from a smart phone? Yes, it's true. You can now take your memory keeping with you using the Project Life app. Phones are already being used as cameras. Now it's easier than ever to get those everyday images from your Camera Roll to your album. With the initial app purchase, you receive a variety of pocket-page templates and several card kits, allowing you to get started immediately. You then have the option to purchase additional template and card kits (nearly 40 themes to choose from and expanding all the time) to complete your library. Plus, making photo collages has never been easier. With numerous collage options, you can print multiple photos on a single 4 x 6 print with ease. Once you've completed
