Once school starts, there's a hustle and bustle of routine as students engage in learning. Big projects like the science fair often turn into a family activity. While this year things look a little different, don't forget to capture these fantastic moments and add them to your scrapbooks! Rebeca's daughter sure looks proud of what she has accomplished!

Cooler weather and glorious trees make nature walks a time-tested autumn activity, and those pretty backdrops often lead to the perfect photo opportunity! Becki's lovely layout features one such walk with a flurry of colourful leaves in a variety of sizes framing the photos. The plaid pattern adds a fantastic fall feel to her design, and the buttons she added give it a sweet, handmade touch.

There's simply not much sweeter than a baby's first trip to the pumpkin patch! Highlight a cherished photo all by itself amidst a sea of white and a wide margin of the perfect patterned paper. Add a title and cluster lots of cutely coordinated embellishments around the photo. We love the touches of aqua in this layout, and, of course, the adorable little guy in the picture!

There's something so pretty and vintage about Alison's fall layout with the text background and the muted antique-like hues. The stripes at the bottom add a fresh look to her design, and the script of the word autumn adds such a special touch. Her scattering of die cut leaves across the bottom call to mind the actual fallen leaves in the center photo. And goodness, those gorgeous trees in her pictures!

Often our fall papercrafted creations tend toward browns, golds, and oranges, but, in reality, it's an even more colourful time of year! Create a rainbow card to share your thankfulness and add gold glitter and a textured background to warm up the design.

Chunky gingham and dainty flowers, berries, and leaves

gorgeously complement Rachel's photos of tall and stately trees all dressed in their autumn finery. The little splatters of ink add a rustic and natural feel that plays well with the deep woods theme. We love how she added a subtitle that spans the big and bold title.

Costumes aren't just for kids!

Adults often plan elaborate ways to dress up for Halloween, too. Clearly, Ali went all out with her Queen of Hearts costume, and the ensuing photo shoot ended up with some fantastically awesome photos! And the fact that all of the hearts on this layout match her costume is giving us heart eyes.

Fall photos abound in this pretty and simple-to-replicate pocket page from Amy. There's a great variety in the photos—from detail shots of gourds and leaves, to spunky pooches in the pumpkin patch, and even Amy herself in front of a stunning tree. Her photos include many different camera angles which adds a lot of visual interest!

Typically, having a picnic with mice doesn't sound like a good time, but if they were as cute as THESE mice, we might consider it! Elise didn't mince on details to create this adorable scene: pumpkins on a hill, a sweet picket fence with sunflowers and ready-to-pick corn, and a magically ink-blended sky set the scene for apples, cheese, and fellowship.

Do you ever feel extra reflective in the fall?

As the years fly by, we begin to contemplate our blessings, and family almost always tops that list. Aurélie's layout centers around a cheerful photo of her family. Likely, the patterns and colours they were all wearing didn't blend well together, but by changing the photo to black and white, the focus turns to the absolute love and joy you can see in their smiles.

Asta's layout shares an element with our 12 x 12 PageMap from this issue with its super big, stitched circle. The placement of the title along those curves is so eye-catching! Even with the bottom half of the title upside down, it's still easy to read and a fun idea for a layout title.

Ashley's darling card has us tickled pink!

We love how she incorporated this unexpected colour for fall in the mushrooms, leaves, and rosy cheeks of this adorable crew of woodland creatures. Her gorgeous ink-blended background of pink and buttery yellow with the crisp white lattice on top gives the card base a super special vibe. So sweet!

They grow up so fast, don't they? Those back to school photos will be a cherished memory for years to come, and Vicki's layout is an inspiring example of how to properly celebrate a middle school boy. Pennants and splatters and lots of youthful icons complement this young man about to embark on a new year.

sending warm wishes

These six cuties (don't miss the snail!)

look like they are preparing for the winter ahead with a gathering in nature. Their cozy scarves and happy smiles are definitely filled with warm wishes! Karin certainly demonstrates how a one-layer card can be a sweet standout.

How fitting is Marcia's layout for the times in which we are living? The photo of her and her husband on the front porch captures 2020 in a nutshell. While at times things felt very dark this year, Marcia has created a beautiful layout to remember the joy they felt just being together at home during this time. The soft colours she chose and the white on white floral die cuts make this layout particularly pretty.

Terri's card made us gasp with its magnificent ink-blended ombré orange sky and the warm sun rays emanating from the top left. The sentiment lands exactly in the sweet spot and intersects with the rays for perfect balance, and the beautiful leaves seem to tumble from the sky down to the cork ground. What a wonderfully gorgeous design.

Are you one of those fun families who come up with themed costumes each Halloween?

Julie and her family concocted a plan to dress up like the Bundys from Married with Children, and wouldn't you know it, it was a contest winner! This layout is a hilarious way to remember this epic costume party. The chunky title filled with Halloween patterns and the tilted photo make this layout a winner in our books.
