Decorating the Christmas tree is such a special tradition for many families.

The trees that go up in living rooms around the world are filled with meaning and memories and tons of love. Setting up the tree takes a lot of time, so creating a layout to remember this beautiful holiday symbol is a must. We adore this pretty layout that Becki created with traditional colours and lots of warmth to accentuate the holiday glow.

Celebrate the JOY of the season with a delightful handmade card to share with someone special. Veronica's card is all kinds of pretty dressed in holly and a beautiful plaid in green and red.

Go all out with holiday whimsy and celebrate the season with flair! Marcia started her layout with a darling photo capturing her delight in the season, and her playful design allows the photo to shine. Snowflakes, candy stripes, and warm mittens add to the fun. Anyone else want a bright red winter coat now?

Obed's mini album is magical indeed!

This chunky album is bedecked in holiday finery, and it simply begs you to open it and see what's inside. The tree shape on the open edge makes this design unique, and the pops of pink and all of the dimensional bits and baubles make it a serious stand out!

Kwanzaa is an annual celebration of African American culture from December 26-January 1. Each of the seven days is dedicated to one of the seven principles of African heritage. Even if you don't celebrate Kwanzaa, you can find much to be inspired by in Tenia's crisp design.

Do you terrorize your pets with festive and hilarious holiday costumes? If you do, it's likely you have lots of photos that you snapped to share on social media or to send to family and friends. Gina's pup Gizmo wasn't the most cooperative model, but she persevered, and finally got the perfect shot. This funny layout features the outtakes from the photo shoot.

Oh, how we love this beautiful card that Tracie created celebrating the sparkle of the season! Her gorgeous blue, white, and silver wreath twinkles with glitter and pearls and metallic leaves, and the sheer ribbon adds texture to this luxurious design. The posh wreath is perfectly paired with a sophisticated font for the sentiment. Whoever receives this card is sure to cherish it always!

Kylie captured some cute photos of her daughter acting adorable and goofy with wacky Christmas glasses and a Santa hat! If you've got a camera-shy teen or preteen, let them be silly with props when you have a photo shoot, and hopefully you'll get the money shot like Kylie did! The peachy pink polka-dotted background is a wonderful complement to her daughter's peaches and cream complexion and the candy stripes and Christmas icons will make this layout a family favourite.

It's tough to capture stellar photos of nighttime holiday adventures, but Julie wanted to remember this family tradition of kicking off the holidays by going to see the lights at Millennium Park in Chicago. The photo gets its own triangular tree in the middle of the layout, and it's nestled among a forest of whimsical and colourful trees created with a cut file.

This layout by Betsy is just so much FUN! Try to tame twins into getting the perfect shot, and you are in for a challenge, but Betsy's layout is a testament to the fact that it will be worth every hilarious moment. The basic sketch of this layout is an easy one to emulate—horizontal photo, a smattering of cute goodies on the left (including the title and twine for texture), with breathing room on the right to focus on the photo and the circle of journaling. Nicely done, Betsy!

There's such a peaceful calm to this layout by Jennifer—the frosty blue, the quiet space, the beautiful title with the sheer and icy word peace. The pretty pattern she chose for the bottom of the layout not only balances the light and airy portions at the top of the layout, it mimics the winter hats that she and her daughter are wearing. We love this line from her journaling, “The weather cold and the entire world quiet—completely insulated with the snow.”

Photo cards at Christmastime are the perfect way to share a family update with everyone on your list. If you want to add a papercrafted touch to your cards this year, pull out your supplies, and enjoy the process! Ali's card is a treasure trove of texture with stitched tulle, hanging trinkets, and miniature pine boughs (not real ones!).

We scrapbook the birthdays, the trips, the anniversaries, and the accomplishments, but Aurélie's layout might inspire you to create a page about your sick child. Their rosy cheeks and vulnerability tug at your heart, so once they drift off to sleep, snap a photo to remember. Not only is Aurélie's concept unique, her layout is simply lovely with the stitched snowflakes and stunning cut file for the title.

Set the scene for wintertime fun by creating a horizontal slimline card! What stood out the most about this card is that beautiful cotton candy pink sky that blends out above the die cut clouds. The layers that Mari created give the card depth with its snowbanks and adorable fence that stretch across the design.

Sweet treats are reserved for special occasions in Junell's family, so when she gave her kids heart-shaped lollipops for Valentine's Day, they were SO excited! How cute is that photo of Junell with a giddy child behind her? We love how her layout has four quadrants—the hearts repeat, the text furthers her love you theme, and the bold stripes draw your eye to the title, journaling, date, and the focal point photo.

Creating handmade tags for Christmas presents is an awesome way to play with a tiny canvas and your favourite products while feeling like you've accomplished something at the same time! Erica's darling tags are particularly inspiring as they look like tiny snow globes, and goodness, aren't those the cutest colours?

Oh, what merry winter fun is to be had with Shanna's wintry layout! Blue, white, black, and grey seem like typical colours to use for snowy designs, but what stood out here was the striking and unexpected RED snowflakes! They totally work since two of the girls on toboggans are wearing red coats. We love how Shanna repeated the red in a phrase strip and a few enamel dots.
