If you live somewhere where fall causes the world to burst into a riot of beauty, you probably have a camera roll of breathtaking photos. Give those pictures star billing in a double-page layout like this one. Jessica's layout accents her beautiful images of fall with lots of texture like wood, burlap, and gems that stand in for berries. It's a feast for the eyes!

Back to school photos are a must-have for every scrapbooking mama!

Rebeca's layout has a particularly inspiring theme. Instead of simply focusing on the traditional photos, she zoomed in her storytelling lens to share details about the new earrings her girls are wearing. I mean, you've gotta jazz up those school uniforms somehow, right?

Emily shared this note with her submission,

“I created this layout using a photo of my sisters and me from back in the day! Halloween was always such a big deal in my family growing up, and I just had to scrapbook this cute and funny picture of us!” We bet you have some fun photos from the past that could get the same treatment!

We're nuts about this adorable card that Marieke created!

Not only is it really cute, it's also such a well- designed card. Note how each of the three branches goes off the main panel giving the design a sense of movement, and the sentiment expertly balances this mini slimline design. To round things out, the focal point falls perfectly in the sweet spot!

Back to school means something a little different as your kids head off to college! Mary created this energetic and fun layout about her daughter's Alpha Delta Pi sorority recruitment week. We love the colourful and youthful patterns and icons she chose to complement these college memories in the making!

We love the sweet and vintage feel to these decorative spoons that Raechelle created. You probably wouldn't typically reach for light pink in your Halloween creations, but these cuties have us convinced! If Halloween isn't your thing, consider how you could modify her ideas for a Thanksgiving, fall, or even Christmas-themed décor!

Carolyn and her family enjoyed a trip to the orchard to pick apples with friends on a warm day in October. To commemorate this happy day, they took a picture which Carolyn has deemed one of her favourite photos ever. The whimsical moment captured inspired her title—Ten Apples Up On Top (which happens to be a book by Dr. Seuss)! We love how she combined all the pink with lots of warm yellow.

Do you have a little crafting buddy? Nothing warms a mama's heart like seeing little ones in her creative space with wide smiles and chubby hands wanting to do crafts, too! One thing that stands out about Jessica's layout is the patterned paper choices and the torn edges. The riot of stars cascading from the top to the bottom with random stamped words in coordinating colours adds to the creative chaos.

New shoes, new clothes, new grade levels, and a fresh start!

Marci started this layout based the Fall 2023 sketch, and it morphed into this layout instead (which doesn't look much like the sketch at all). Just goes to show that a sketch is a wonderful tool to spark your creativity. And we love that Marci scrapbooked a photo that is almost 10 years old!

There's a cute and spooky elegance to this Halloween layout by Inessa!

The lacy and knit-look patterned papers add a ton of texture, and we love how the bulk of the layout is black and white causing the darling photos to stand out. Little bits of yellow and orange accent the photos (especially the Minion) and the adorable polka-dotted balloons add whimsy.

When creating a neutral layout like Jeri's, it's important to play with the concept of texture. The awwwww-so-cute photo inspired her colour palette and the warm tones she added with the vintage ledgers, wooden rulers, and other pretty neutral bits. How eye-catching are all the angles? We just love her placement of the patterns and the adorable snapshot of the snuggly baby reminding us to cherish these moments.

This one goes out to all the sweet tooth! We love that this card represents the bag full of candy trick or treaters sort on the living room floor on October 31st after a night out in the neighbourhood. Stamps like this one are fun to customize for a variety of candy-eating occasions just by changing the colours. Think Christmas, Valentine's Day, or even Easter or the county fair.

Such an amazing photo on this pretty layout! It's clear that Stephanie based her colour scheme on the photo, paying particular attention to that gorgeous blue sky above the fiery fall tree line. The perky scalloped layers, cheerful gingham, and playful polka dots give this fantastic autumn layout lots of homemade flair.

Laura's extra special card is surely a way to express thankfulness; check out the many stunning details. To begin with, we love this fresh and gorgeous colour combination with shots of white and silvery sparkle. Add in a dose of jaunty stitching and some torn vellum for maximum texture and interest. This card says "you mean so much to me!"

After a wonderful evening with friends at a fairytale restaurant set against the mountains, Ali couldn't wait to document her experience. She backed a cut file with nature-inspired colours and hand stitched two pieces for the background of her layout. The pretty butterflies and leaves she sprinkled across the page add to the storybook adventure theme.

What a pretty layout! We love the rich and saturated colours of this playful page by Lindsay. Her simple journaling captures the essence of the carefree play and unbridled joy with bunches of bubbles on the front lawn. "Could there ever be too many bubbles? Nope." We must agree—there's no such thing as too many bubbles.
